Covid-19 Vaccine Updates

Aizu Wakamatsu City is preparing to start distributing the coronavirus Pfizer vaccine to residents ages 65 and older by the end of this month. Vaccination passes will be sent by snail mail to residents in waves according to their vaccination priority group. Residents ages 65 and older who live in elderly care facilities will be given the second-highest priority after healthcare workers. When you receive your vaccination pass, additional documents will also be included with details about where and how to receive your vaccine. The vaccine is free of charge.

A Year in Review at the AWIA

The 2020-2021 fiscal year was one of the most challenging we've experienced, but also one of the most rewarding. After Japan's first national state of emergency last spring, the staff here at the AWIA had to completely re-think the way we facilitate international exchange. Over the next several months, we worked to adapt events to suit new coronavirus guidelines, moved Japanese lessons online, and found new ways to revive events that had once centered around eating and drinking. We want to thank each and every one of our members and volunteers who helped and supported us as we navigated new trails this year. We couldn't have done it without you!

Message from the Editor

Hello everyone! Thank you for reading this month's English newsletter. To anyone who has just joined the AWIA as a new member this month, thank you very much for your support! With the weather warming up and vaccine distribution on the horizon, we are greatly looking forward to bringing you lots of exciting opportunities for international exchange this year. At the end of this month, the long-awaited Golden Week holidays will begin!! I've been trying to think of ways to enjoy the holiday without breaking the bank or doing anything too risky in terms of travel during covid-19. In the past, I usually just rented out an Airbnb in the mountains for a week to enjoy a change of scenery, but since moving to Aizu, now I can see the mountains from my house! How do you enjoy spending your Golden Week? -Nola
