New English Speaking CIR—Erika Csanyi

Hello! Nice to meet everyone! My name is Erika Csanyi and I will be the new Coordinator for International Relations (CIR) at AWIA from August. I'm originally from Vancouver, Canada and I've lived in Aizu for over 5 years now. I've truly fallen in love with Aizu, so I'm really excited to be starting at the International Association! I've been involved in a few events at the International Association throughout the years, so I'm looking forward the events we'll be holding throughout the year, and hope you are too!

An unusual thing about me is that I'm an identical twin. My sister used to live in Japan, but has since moved back to Vancouver. My favourite movie is The Matrix, and I'm a HUGE Arashi fan. I really like fake-food samples, and have a good collection of fake-food earrings. I also really like painting my nails, but I'm not that girly. I've gotten into Judo recently, and I hope to get my blackbelt sometime this year or early next. I am looking forward to meeting you, so please stop by the International Association and say hello! Yoroshiku onegaishimasu!

Member Spotlight: Sekizawa Kazuyuki

Mr. Sekizawa Kazuyuki, AWIA member & homestay volunteer host

This is Mr. Sekizawa, a host family volunteer. You may have seen him at the AWIA's Halloween haunted house wearing a cowboy hat! While it has been hard to get homestay visitors during the ongoing pandemic, Mr. Sekizawa is surrounded by a growing number of people linked by their common interests and hobbies. He says, "it would be nice if there was a way for people who share hobbies to meet up and get to know each other within the AWIA". We think so too!

Meeting new people through road cycling ~ Treasuring the bonds made through cultural exchange

"The best part of Aizu comes from its people". That's what my Chinese friend Mr. Jo (a new AIWA member) says. He also says that "the natural environment, the air, water, food, and the sake is perfect". For someone from Aizu like myself, to hear such compliments makes me very pleased. I met Mr. Jo last summer at the Seaburi-touge Pass. We were both on our road bikes, which is what got us talking. I wrote about our meeting, and it was featured in the Fukushima Minpo Newspaper. Please have a read!

Treasuring the bonds made through cultural exchange

Last summer, I set off alone for the Seaburi-touge Pass with my road bike, aiming to reach the summit. Along the way, I met an older man who I had seen now and then riding his own bike ahead of me, and started up a conversation with him. I found out that he was originally from Dalian in China who had moved to Japan, and we later became close friends. At the time though, I simply told him I was a member of the Aizuwakamatsu International Association, and we exchanged contact information.

Later, he told me that he was still trying to get familiar with the Aizu region, so I took him on several road bike trips around local cycling courses and mountain passes. In Autumn we did a loop around Sado Island, covering about 260km during our 3-day 2-night stay. During that trip, he told me a little more about himself. I learned that after he graduated from university in China, he came to Japan as an engineering research student, and worked to pay for his studies at a Japanese graduate school. He saw Japan through the Showa bubble period through to the Heisei era, meeting a lot of Japanese people that supported and befriended him along the way. I can learn so much from the experiences he shares with me. Something he said recently has stuck with me. "Our relationships are half a gift from the gods, but the other half depends on our efforts!" He's right. I'm glad I took the initiative and talked to him back in that mountain pass.

From here on out, I want to continue these international exchanges through road cycling, having once-in-a-lifetime encounters, and treasuring all the bonds I make along the way.

Fukushima Minpo Newspaper
Feb 19, 2022

Unfortunately, I can't speak English or Chinese. I'm just a regular guy from Aizu, with no experience of living abroad. However, I have always enjoyed and sought out new experiences, wanting to see new cultures, countries, and learn about their histories and environments. I especially enjoy interactions with the locals! I think that foreigners that come all this way to Aizu must be seeking similar experiences. I want those people to experience the Aizu that I love; to enjoy our nature and history without worries. I want to support them in that endeavour.

Actually, the other day Mr. Jo and his wife taught me how to make authentic gyoza (including the wrappers!). I was impressed by the dexterity of his wife in making the gyoza skins. Also, Mr. Li (another new AWIA member) taught me some cooking with dougan tofu. He is a pro with the spices! I believe all of our lives can be enriched with these sorts of cultural exchanges. This is the beauty of international exchange. If you can take a step forward without fretting and fussing over it, your horizons broaden exponentially!

I have a few different channels of connections myself, so lately I've been enjoying the benefits of introducing some friends to each other. It'd be great if the AWIA could also be a place that facilitates the introductions of like-minded people with similar interests.
